VAYELECH

As we come to the end of our yearly reading of the Torah, we are informed that Moses wrote down this teaching (the book of Deuteronomy) and gave it (the manuscript) to the priests, descendants of Levi, who were {in charge of} carrying the Ark of the Covenant, and to all the elders of Israel. Moses then instructed them: "every seventh year, at the Feast of Booths ... you shall read this teaching aloud in the presence of all Israel".

What was done once every seven years, however, is now done every week. We have a Torah reading every Saturday and on all our holidays, and even on Mondays and Thursdays, which use to be market days in ancient Israel. It has become a mitzvah (good deed) to study the Torah everyday. The rabbi's said that the study of scriptures surpasses all the other commandments.

To do so, all we need is a new translation of the Bible in modern English and set aside ten minutes of our time to study a passage of it.

I would like to recommend an excellent manual "The Jewish Study Bible" by Berlin and Brettler, Oxford University Press, second edition.

If anyone wants a name listed for a mishebeirach, please call the office by Wednesday of the week and the name will go into the bulletin for that week.

A prayer for healing can be said at any time and does not require a minyan. The Amidah (page 113 in Siddur Sim Shalom) shows a format that can be used: "May it be your will, Lord our God and God of our ancestors, to send perfect healing, of body and soul, to _____, along with all others who are stricken".

Marka Gottlieb, Kate Heiser, Evie Martinez, Lorraine Shively, Abraham David Silverman, Marcia Turkiewicz, Ned Weiner
