As Moses begins his great closing addresses to the next generation, he turns to a subject that dominates the last of the Mosaic books, namely justice. Tzedek, (justice) is a key word in the book of Devarim – most famously in the verse: “Pursue justice, only justice, so that you may live and possess the land that the Lord your God is giving you.” The distribution of the word Tzedek - and its derivative tzedakah (economic justice) in the Five Books of Moses is anything but random. It is overwhelmingly concentrated in the first and last books: Genesis (where it appears 16 times) and Deuteronomy (18 times). In Exodus it occurs only four times and in Leviticus five. In Numbers, the word does not appear at all.
