This year, 5787, is the second of the triennial readings of the Torah. We begin with the retelling of the story of the Garden of Eden which focuses on human responsibility and agency. After the expulsion from Eden, humanity further devolves into chaos and violence with the fratricide of Abel by Cain. The rapid rise of the city-state and the accompanying technological advancements (writing and metallurgy) signaled a transition from an idyllic prehistorical mythos to a period marked by struggle and conflict. This sets the stage for the Tower of Babel and the appearance of Noah at the end of the Sedra.
